2025 New Colombo Plan Taiwan Scholars visit TECO

On the 5th of February 2025, the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office (TECO) in Australia hosted a reception for 2025 New Colombo Plan scholars inbound to Taiwan.

The New Colombo Plan (NCP) is an Australian Government initiative aimed at enhancing knowledge of the Indo-Pacific in Australia. It supports Australians to study, undertake language training, and complete internships in the region, fostering student exchange and strengthening cross-cultural links.

Taiwan continues to be a key destination for NCP scholars, providing opportunities to study, immerse in Mandarin language learning, and gain professional experience. Since the program's inception, more than 1,000 Australian students have studied in Taiwan through NCP mobility and scholarship programs.

TECO Representative Douglas Hsu welcomed this year's NCP Taiwan scholars, sharing insights into life in Taiwan and the importance of diplomacy. He encouraged them to embrace the experience and make the most of their time abroad.

Ms. Wei-chen Lee of the TECO Education Division introduced Taiwan's higher education system, Mandarin learning resources, and scholarship opportunities. She wished the scholars success in their studies and encouraged them to engage fully in academic and cultural activities.

Dr. Lin, Executive Director of the TECO Science and Technology Division, highlighted Taiwan's thriving technology industry, including strengths in innovation and semiconductor development. He encouraged scholars to explore the opportunities available in Taiwan's research and tech sectors.

TECO looks forward to supporting this new group of NCP scholars as they embark on their journey, further strengthening the educational and cultural ties between Australia and Taiwan.
